DESCRIPTION AND FUNCTIONALITY

JEANNE is a stool consisting of a rubber wood seat with a chassis that is made of climbing rope. The design of JEANNE plays with the difference between dream and reality. It is a playful, somewhat mysterious design. In addition, the design encourages reflection.

JEANNE is delivered fully assembled. Studio Sergeant always uses a virtual client for his designs. This client is a person that has influenced the design through his/her actions and or work. In this design, the name refers to Jeanne Immink, the founder of the mountain climbing for women. She was the first woman in the world to obtain the fourth degree as a mountain guide in the UIAA and introduced the climbing pants.

MATERIAL

Seat: Rubberwood blockboard, 2x 18mm, neutral oil (Rubio Moncoat oil plus 2C). Because rubber wood is a natural product, there may be minor differences in color between upper and lower seat and in the block board itself. For the maintenance and / or removing of stains only use the maintenance products of Rubiomonocoat.

Chassis: Steel, covered with climbing rope. The color of the climbing rope is seasonal. The bottom side is covered with a rubber anti-slip.
